

Our top 10 learning highlights from 2024

Books

"I found this book quite comforting! This book definitely helped me to have a more balanced perspective."

"The Stanford Design school book series is one I've kept coming back to. They are practical and easy to read."

Podcast

"A brilliant series from The Atlantic all about lowering down, making space, and finding meaning."

"This podcast gives me a window into new worlds to learn from and be inspired by."

TED Talk

"A masterclass in empathy and brave conversations. Loved the prompts - Tell me more, what else, go on."

"This is one of TED's most popular talks, for a reason. It will help you think differently about deadlines."

Newsletter

"A brilliant source of tech and tools to help you be more efficient at work!"

"Farnham Street is a brilliant blog to spark your thinking and their weekly newsletter is learning time well spent."

Person

"Follow Chris Donnelly on LinkedIn if you're interested in business and personal growth."

"Atul Gawande's work on checklists has introduced me to a new way to make sure that things that matter don't get missed."